A Predeployment Checklist for Couples

Preparation and communication are the keys to having a positive deployment experience. Planning ahead can prevent partners at home from feeling they have to handle it all alone and service members from worrying about things left undone.

Use this checklist for discussing what you need to take care of BEFORE the deployment begins.

Know location of important papers.
	Set up a plan for emergency care for family members before a situation arises. This will be one less worry for you if an emergency should happen.
	Someone other than your spouse should have the following information about the active duty member:
	Name:
	Rate/Rank:
	Command address:
	SSN:
Coping Strategies
	Plan your days and weeks. Be in charge instead of just letting things happen to you. Alter your attitude to live life each day.
	Become aware of your support systems: family, friends, family support group, place of worship.
	Keep physically active. Exercise is a great way to chase the blues away and help you deal with stress.
	Take good care of yourself and look good.
	Learn to enjoy time alone. Get to know and appreciate yourself.
	Learn a new skill. Take a class, get a job, or go back to school.
	If you use this time wisely, you will have many positive things to talk about both during the deployment and at homecoming.
